

29 May 1986

NOTE FOR: Acting D/L

FROM: [REDACTED]

C/PD/OL

SUBJECT: General Donovan Statue

John,

According to [REDACTED] Sam Anderson is coming into town on Sunday and bringing a one-and-one-half foot statue. He is scheduled to meet with [REDACTED] and the Chairman of the Fine Arts Commission on Monday. [REDACTED] of my office is scheduled to meet with Mr. Anderson Monday afternoon to discuss the cost estimates.

In an effort to gain some insight into the "artist fees", Sharon contacted [REDACTED] to ask how much familiarity she had with such fees. Carole advised that the only fees she had been familiar with were estimated artist fees from a famous sculptor, Marc Mellon, who had offered to do a statue of General Donovan for approximately $70,000.00. She then commented that Mr. Mellon was not going to do the statue because [REDACTED] Sam Anderson, was going to do the statue. The Fine Arts Commission had been advised that that Mr. Anderson was designing the statue at no cost to the Agency and that Mr. Casey planned to pay for the casting as he was presenting the statue to the Agency as a gift. The only charge that the Agency would have to pay would be transportation charges.

Just an interesting note that I thought you might like to know about. Will keep you posted.

John,
 costs incurred to date plus cost estimates of
Sam Anderson exceed $100,000.

*Leaving: Ugh; pls
 keep in the loop.
 John*

Samuel Contradictory